Classify points inside of a polygon and output a list of points

I want to use Mathematica to classify points which are inside a polygon and then output a list of points. For example, if I have the following points  $p = \{ \{ -1.0125,$ $-0.9898 \}, \{ -0.8029, -0.9885 \}, \{$
 $-0.8114, -1.0058 \}, \{ -1.0942,$

What's New in the Wormtail Portable?

Wormtail Portable - is a lightweight application designed to help you monitor LOG files and view changes as they happen. The built-in tree-view file explorer will help you quickly find the desired log file and access its content. Wormtail Portable can only read complete new lines in a log file, enabling you to keep an eye on the progress of a certain process. The installer version is available here.

Version: 1.1.3.0 Library version: 1.0.0.0 Description: A portable application that will help you monitor the logs of your application. The application will show you what's happening in the log file, for example, you can see when someone connects to your application. The application uses a tree-view file explorer to help you find the log file you want to monitor. You can select which columns you want to be displayed by adding them to the "format" of the log file. You can also see in the log file when someone accesses your application. Finally, Wormtail Portable will show you when the last log file was read. Do you know another free log monitoring application? Do you think that Wormtail Portable will be useful to you? You can also contact me by e-mail, my address is "pavletpalus@gmail.com".

Additional Information: You can use Wormtail Portable to monitor your log file on a portable USB pendrive, and you don't need to install Wormtail Portable on a hard disk. It's important that Wormtail Portable is updated with the most recent log file data available. The application won't work if it doesn't have the latest log data. For that reason, Wormtail Portable will update its log data automatically, every time you use the application. The application will also update its log data on restart, using the log data it already has. In Wormtail Portable, you can set the log path of your application. For example, Wormtail Portable will update the data of the log file of your application installed in the `%windir%` directory. The application will only use the path you specify, regardless of whether it is the complete path or not. You can see the log data in

---

Wormtail Portable in the tree-view file explorer. If you only want to monitor one log file, you can filter the tree-view file explorer by choosing the file that you want to monitor. If you want to see more than one log file simultaneously, you can open them in the
