“I’ve never been so excited as I am about where our team is at. I am more motivated now than I’ve been in a long time. We’ve been talking about what we want to achieve in the (CHL) season and I’ve been encouraging guys to reach out in the off-season to find new coaches and new training environments. I’ve been talking to them and they haven’t responded but that is the reason why I haven’t sat in a meeting and had to explain to them what we need to do in the off-season to be successful. I’m excited to sit and share with them what we think will work.” Note: Gaudet is set to be one of the members of the Charlottetown Islanders’ coaching staff. It is possible that his main focus is coaching the Islanders’ junior team. Gaudet is the 2018-19 WHL Coach of the Year after guiding his team to the title on the strength of a 48-6-0-0 record and a 1.85 points-per-game average. The third-place Kelowna Rockets swept the second-place Everett Silvertips in the Western Conference Final to capture the Yates Cup. Gaudet has also just finished his second season as an assistant coach with the Portland Winterhawks of the WHL and is an assistant with the Canadian World Junior team. He is leading Portland in the best-of-seven series against the Vancouver Giants and will assist on Canada’s coaching staff in the gold-medal game. In the WHL, he helped his team earn the regular-season title and host the Western Conference Finals. He guided the Winterhawks to a 40-10-1-1 record, which was the best in the WHL. Gaudet was voted the WHL's Coach of the Year in the league's all-star game. Born in East Ellsworth, Maine, Gaudet grew up in Morristown, N.J., but has a deep connection to the Maritimes as he spent the summers of his childhood playing beach hockey with his father in St. Stephen and then spent a year playing with the Moncton Hawks of the QMJHL after graduating from Holy Cross High School. He was named to the CHL team of the week for Feb. 25 after leading the Winter

Love In medieval times, marriage was a permanent bond; when a man and woman married, they would be considered husband and wife regardless of future events. Because there were no legal grounds for divorce, and civil suits to dissolve such a union were generally only able to be brought in the case of non-procreativity, in many cases, marriage was considered a contract for life. In many times and places, a man was released from a marriage and left to marry another woman by means of a legal proceeding called fornication (see Remus). Though this practice varied by region, depending on canon law, a common form of fornication was the invalidation of a marriage after sexual intercourse. When this took place, the man and the second wife were often declared to be husband and wife, so that the rights and duties of that marriage would still be held for her. Because some invalidations caused or could cause the death of the child born to the second woman, or if a child born to her was deemed illegitimate, it was common for the invalidating husband to enter a life of celibacy if he wished to regain his rights to his children; if he was unable to do so, he and the second wife would be declared common-law spouses.
