One day, while sleeping in the songs department of a famous record store, a surprising event woke you up. The owner, was a man that had the peculiarity to be able to make the pieces of any record fall perfectly into place in the correct rhythm and lead the different parts as if they were one. After, he took his job seriously, always trying to improve. He became addicted to his routine. His daughter, was being treated in a far away city after a tragic event. The girl was diagnosed with very serious illness. Her father, was a music man, and more talented than her doctors. His daughter's life depended on that, only he could cure her. He had to find that musician and the only ones to help him doing that, was you, and a few other people that knew something about that violin player. She also was a girl that knows how to play music. Both of you belong to different worlds. She to music, and he to science. However, she is a little bit like him. The only difference is that she loves music, not records. _ MANY people know about Joseph's voyage from the land of Egypt to a promised land, or from one country to another seeking a new home. But few have heard of the story of the three brothers and their chariots in the fourth Book of Chronicles. After their father put them in charge of their property in their thirties, Joseph, the father of Benjamin, did the same thing for them. These brothers, rather than go home after this way of improving their fortunes, instead went far away. They got into a quarrel, and after the three brothers had been ordered into Egypt by Pharaoh, they came to Joseph and told their troubles. In his gift of understanding and his firmness in dealing with his brothers, Joseph set the three brothers in the position of being governors in Egypt. Through the separation from Bethlehem and the wealthy Canaan, all the three brothers lost their positions and became poor. But Joseph told Benjamin about his return, and the blessings that were soon to come on the family. This brother of Joseph was able to have much of his lost father's property in Egypt stored, in safe hands. In his old age he would still be rich and would also be a powerful man because of the great position his father had held. FOR short journeys over two or three miles, the brothers would ride or drive, sometimes with one and sometimes with two and sometimes with three horses. They might stop and pick fruit, or journey to see their relatives and friends. For a long journey, they went in large, four-wheeled farm cars. This method took eleven men to start the car and five to drive it. At the end of a day's traveling, they would build a shelter for the car. At night they would build a fire to keep warm. In that way they were able to travel long distances without becoming too tired. The roads of the day were sometimes not safe. Roads were sometimes streets, sometimes dirt, sometimes with stones and other rough elements. During harvest time, the roads were sometimes muddy and deep from plowing. Often salt was brought in, poured into the road, and watered the ground for good crops. Salt and water would cover the surface of the ground like a flood. Sometimes after a heavy rain, the roads would be filled with five-foot-deep water. Salt would
