Q: Exporting exe to a windows server share over a lan - how to force users to download installer on the server? I'm trying to move my game to a web server. One of the steps I'm using is to have my game zip file and uploaded to a windows share folder on the server. In this case I have this web service running on an AWS server: However, when I try to access it from my Win7, it downloads the game, but the installer won't run as it requires Admin rights. Is there a way I can have the user download the installer instead? A: If you need the user to actually execute the installer you can do it by being really sneaky and putting a desktop shortcut on the server you're sharing and point it to the location where you're serving up your zip file. However, if you're not using a tool to handle your package installers and are relying on the user to manually run your installer in-store then you're shooting yourself in the foot. If the user accidentally clicks on the shortcut, you're letting them do something they shouldn't have, and in the worst-case scenario you're giving them a malicious executable that might just install malware on your server. What you really need to do is to embed your package installer into a webpage that prompts the user to authorize it before it's executed. If you're using a Windows server, you could publish the installer as a website of sorts, and have the user navigate to it through whatever technology you're using to display the webpage from the server. From there, you can prompt the user for their admin credentials, and either accept the credentials and run the installer or prompt the user if they want to cancel the installation.

package org.sandrob.bouncycastle.crypto.tls; import java.io.IOException; import java.io.OutputStream; import org.sandrob.bouncycastle.asn1.ASN1Encodable; import org.sandrob.bouncycastle.asn1.ASN1EncodableVector; import org.sandrob.bouncycastle.asn1.ASN1Integer; import org.sandrob.bouncycastle.asn1.ASN1Object; import org.sand e79caf774b

I could be wrong but that's how I remember it. Am I correct? How do you get that files? A: I figured [Diagnosis and treatment of blunt abdominal trauma]. The first, and foremost, condition of successful treatment of polytrauma is timely and successful emergency intervention. Emergency surgery is vital and obligatory. If necessary, "bulk-reoperation" will be performed. Quick and successful transfer from hospital or other centers means major treatment success. The leading role of the surgeon in the development of pre and postoperative care and prevention of complications and infections, the application of modern diagnostics methods is of significant importance.Q: Tag pet-drop-list-modal-not-found I'm trying to use the pet-drop-list-modal-not-found component in the Picswirl Carousel (which generates a modal). I also want to add this component as a child of a custom component and get the error Template parse errors: Parser Error: Unexpected token, expected ";" While searching for the cause I found a question from 2012 (don't remember when exactly) which had this template as a solution:
