Para el coleccionista de plataformas, la tierra que se pierde es infinita; por el amor a la historia, será siempre un suelo con identidad propia. Ninguna parte de una urbe es como la Ciudad de México, ninguna otra. Por eso dificulta atender a la necesidad que sienta la sociedad de reconocer su identidad, de decir sin titubear y sin tapujos que es mexicana, latina, mexicano, etc. Los mexicanos cada vez nos sentimos más frágiles, más expuestos ante la fuerza de las migraciones y la cultura que nos precede. Sostenemos, incluso, que nuestra mexicanidad es definida por cierto criterio social que hemos recibido, sobre todo, de la ciudad de México que nos da nombre. El valor de esta ciudad, tan gorda en el corazón del país, es tan real para los mexicanos que se extienden por todas partes. La imagen de México, creada por la televisión, es la de una ciudad próspera, tradicional, dinámica. La Ciudad de México es viva, gira en ella tanto capital de todo lo que es mexicano. Si incluso la imagen de México es reflexión de la herencia que hemos wireless LAN system using an IEEE 802.11 wireless communications standard (hereinafter also referred to as a “WLAN system”) has been known. For example, an access point for providing an access point function is provided in the WLAN system.

The access point has a wireless communication function and a wired network function. The wired network function functions as an Ethernet repeater, for example, to extend the range of a transmission distance. In the WLAN system, a station that intends to transmit a signal performs a clear channel assessment before transmission, by using a carrier sense function and a broadcast function. In a standard IEEE 802.11 such as IEEE 802.11b (cf. Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open Publication No. 2005-172654), when a station intends to transmit a signal, the station firstly performs a clear channel assessment and then transmits a signal. The clear channel assessment is performed by monitoring a special packet (clear channel assessment packet) transmitted from a station with a wireless communication function (i.e., a station in the direction from which the station intends to transmit a signal). In the WLAN system, when an access point (AP) performs a clear channel assessment, for example, a carrier sense is performed for each of a plurality of channels. The access point acquires wireless communication resources, which are used by stations, by comparing a received signal level of each channel, and operates as a repeater after determining a channel that provides a highest received signal level.
