

by B Glaser 2020 - the king of the area of interest, proposed topography, . Gburek and Sharpley 1998; Zimmermann et al., 2014) or by hand while walking. As with adults, with kids you need to repeat the same command several times: "Come on, come on, come on, come on, come on!" Until the child understands what they want from him. Since babies have imperfect hearing and begin to understand words from the third or fifth pronunciation, they may have to repeat the same phrases up to ten times. But still, if the child suddenly began to understand what the mother was asking for, then most likely he would fulfill this command. "Come on, come on, come on, come on, come on," says the mother
