FULL Curvemeister 3.4.1 (x32 X64) Photoshop Plugin [Serial]

I have the 4.0.5 of the panel, and was using what I believed to be the same Photoshop CC as you. It still was giving the same problem. Several of us were experiencing the same problem. I am now using CS5 in 64bit and a Mac, and that is what I am using for your instructions. Thank you. John Hi John, I am about to give the Adobe plugin a try with your script. I am using an existing jpeg file, so all that should be required is to open it and run your script in sequence. I dont have a workable copy of Photoshop on this computer, and would like to be able to use this software, although I will be using Linux. I am experiencing problems downloading and installing of several utilities that i would like to try to use the jpeg panel as it is free. I have downloaded and installed the program for Linux, (GTK), Gimp and libsox to try and use the features of Gimp 2.8. I tried libsox, but it doesnt appear to be the right program for this. I did find a copy of Gimp 2.8 on the internet, but I cant figure out how to install it. Hi, This is to inform you that I have installed the PPW extensons you provided and that the Photoshop CS5 also work fine with them. Thanks. I would like to ask you about the Tool option in Curvie pane. Since I'm not using the PPW script I have never need to remove the PPW panel from my tool bar. Now that I have and am using the PPW script I have discovered that the PPW panel will not let go of control of the tool bar. It has no option to remove itself from the tool bar and Photoshop itself will not let me add it to the tool bar. Only another PPW panel can go in the tool bar. For some reason this problem is only in CS5.
