your doctor. Do not use this medication if you are also taking a thyroid medication (such as levothyroxine, liothyronine), oral anticoagulants (such as warfarin, Coumadin), or any of the following medications: antibiotics such as clarithromycin (Biaxin), erythromycin (Erythrocin), penicillin (Amoxicillin), tetracycline (Empirin, Novo-Tetracycline, Ora-Tetracycline), or cephalosporins such as cefaclor (Keflex, Floxin), or rifampin (Rifadin, Rifadin IV). If you have any of these conditions, or are nursing, pregnant, or a senior (65 or older): tell your doctor before you start using this medication. Elderly (65 years or older) women with a history of bleeding (such as bleeding in the lungs or stomach, or peptic ulcers in the stomach or intestines) while taking NSAIDs, such as piroxicam, are at higher risk of developing these problems. For instance, warfarin may increase the chances of bleeding in the lungs or stomach. Tell your doctor immediately if you have bleeding in the stomach or intestine. Withdraw all NSAIDs and other medicines used to treat your allergies before stopping this medication. If you are taking this medication and have questions about side effects or how to manage them, talk to your doctor, nurse, or pharmacist. Do not change your diet or the way you take your medication without talking to your doctor. If you have any of the following symptoms, stop taking this medication and call your doctor immediately: dark, tarry stools; nausea or vomiting; stomach pain that does not go away; or yellowing of your skin or the whites of your eyes. Piroxicam may be unsafe to use during pregnancy. There may be an increased risk of having a baby with a birth defect if you take this medication during the first trimester of pregnancy. Do not take this medication while you are pregnant.

NSAIDs such as piroxicam may cause ulcers, bleeding, or holes in the stomach or intestine. These problems may develop at any time during treatment, may happen without warning symptoms, and may cause death. The risk may be higher for people who take NSAIDs for a long time, are older in age, have poor health, or drink large amounts of alcohol while you are taking piroxicam. Tell your doctor if you take any of the following medications: anticoagulants ('blood thinners') such as warfarin (Coumadin, Jantoven); aspirin; other NSAIDs such as ibuprofen (Advil, Motrin) and naproxen (Aleve, Naprosyn); oral steroids such as dexamethasone, methylprednisolone (Medrol), and prednisone (Rayos); selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors (SSRIs) such as citalopram (Celexa), fluoxetine (Prozac, Sarafem, Selfemra, in Symbyax), fluvoxamine (Luvox), paroxetine (Brisdelle, Paxil, Peveva), and sertraline (Zoloft); or serotonin norepinephrine reuptake inhibitors (SNRIs) such as desvenlafaxine (Khedezia, Pristiq), duloxetine (Cymbalta), and venlafaxine (Effexor XR). Also tell your doctor if you have or have ever had ulcers or bleeding in your stomach or intestines or other bleeding disorders. If you experience any of the following symptoms, stop taking piroxicam and call your doctor: stomach pain, heartburn, vomiting a substance that is bloody or looks like coffee grounds, blood in the stool, or black and tarry stools. The recommended dose of piroxicam ranges from 10mg to 20mg daily, depending on needs and circumstances. A dose of 20mg can be taken as either 20mg once daily or 10mg twice daily. Take this medication immediately after food, or with food or milk to avoid stomach upset. The usual maximum daily dose is 20mg. Piroxicam suppositories are also an alternative. The lowest dose needed for the shortest possible duration of treatment should be used. 5ec8ef588b
