We also have more auto-alert features like auto-backup, which are extremely helpful and very convenient. One of the most pleasurable aspects of the new interface is that it's very intuitive and users can quickly jump around to different tasks. Eye-tracking and an improved UI also mean that it's much more practical for users to work faster while maintaining the consistency of the look and feel. In addition to that, the new interface is also much more consistent with other applications. Whether it's the new Essential Panel or the ScoutBar, you can use the same system in all of Photoshop's toolbars and panels. Check out the new Photoshop for a preview of this. Photoshop also features a new Guide feature that keeps track of the color space you've chosen for the image or video. But if you're finding that every time you have to switch to a different color space you lose your guide, there's no need to worry. You can now use the new guide feature as a color-managed system, always maintaining your color space.
