Movie The Print Hi Guys, I found a movie in youtube named "The Print" in my search about a movie The Print" with a great story with english subri..Q: "React-Navigation: navigation handle cannot be used during navigation" after updating React Native and react-navigation I have updated to the latest version of react-native and react-navigation (4.0.0 and 0.14.0 respectively). Everything was working well before the update but after, I get this error: How to make react-navigation work with RN 0.27? Seems like the old way of navigator.getTabs(navigation), which worked well, is removed in the new version. A: Explanation The most general issue with the current version is that GetTabs no longer exists. Now the act of getting the tabs have been moved to an async operation, instead of doing it synchronously during onNavigationStateLocked. You need to use the getCurrentTabs instead. import * as React from "react"; import * as Navigation from "react-native-navigation"; import styled from "styled-components"; import { ActivityIndicator, getNavigationState, createStackNavigator, getCurrentTabs, } from "react-navigation"; const TabsContainer = styled.View` flex-shrink: 0; height: 100%; padding: 10px; `; const Main = () => { const { navigation } = useContext(NavigationContext); const getCurrentTabs = async (state: any) => { const screens = await navigation.getCurrentScreens(); return { screens }; }; return ({navigation.getCurrentTabs()}); }; export const Settings = createStackNavigator({ Main: Main }); Note: The new StackNavigator is not context aware, so you have to get the props that you require with navigation.navigation. Example: import * as React from "react"; import { ActivityIndicator, getNavigationState,
