It stars Jamie Dornan, Dakota Johnson, and Kim Ha Joon and was released on February 10, 2015 in the United States. 50 Shades of Grey tells the story of Anastasia Steele, a naïve college student, who has an encounter with older and dominant businessman Christian Grey. The two fall in love, but their relationship is not without challenges, including a particular scene in which Anastasia must endure a form of pain and bondage called "financial domination" (FD). The film also received criticism for the difficulty of the main character's name. Some have called the main character's last name, name derived from a book of the same name, to be sexist. The film is based on the 2012 novel of the same name by E. L. James. The film was accompanied by a Fifty Shades Freed, a third film in the trilogy and the first film released in the franchise. Netflix released the second film The Debut, a film adaptation of the 2014 The Debut: Love Story from Fifty Shades Freed. All three films are collectively known as the Fifty Shades film series. It is the first adaptation of the Fifty Shades of Grey book to not be produced by Universal Pictures, the producers of the Twilight films and the fourth adaptation by Universal to use James Foley's writing instead of E. L. James's writing. This is the first time that the series was not a part of the Twilight franchise and the second time that it is a Warner Bros. Pictures franchise, the first time being the 2001 film The Wedding Planner. The film was produced by Michael De Luca and Dana Brunetti and distributed by Warner Bros. Pictures.
