You've come to the right place. They're no longer reserved for hearty dinners in pastel-pinks and beiges. These happy, beady bivalves are now having their glorious blue moment in 2019. The Parisian-style Blue Mussels From about 5-15 Euros a plate Plucked from their shells in the middle of May, these mussels are ready for a day of summer beach-wear and their fabulous Champagne Blue shells are about to be uncovered to take over your summer table. For more about this Blue New Zealand mussel recipe and why they are the perfect party mussel choice, check out my 2020 Blue Challenge. No shell flipping here These mussels are one of the most healthy varieties on the market and they don't bother with shell-flipping, so no need to worry about broken shells. They are ideally suited to a summer dinner party, as they are very easy to clean. This is a bonus for anyone like me who dislikes shelling. One of the things I find most impressive about these mussels from the shell as opposed to, say, shucking them. So if you feel a little squeamish about this procedure, you don't need to worry.
